 Wikipedia. $145\,\rm{K}$, the average FWHM of the line is $2.5\,\rm{km\,s^{-1}}$, implying a typical velocity field of $\sim$ $10\,\rm{km\,s^{-1}}$ and thus a Reynolds number of $R_L \sim 100$. The systematic velocity field in the $1^{\rm st}$ quadrant of the penumbrae of sunspots (with $\leq 2.5\,\rm{km\,s^{-1}}$) is significantly smaller than in the 2^{nd} quadrant ($\leq 3.7 \text{ km s}^{-1}$), with a ratio of about 1.3. We have also estimated a value of $R_{\text{L}} \sim 100$ from the veiling of the diffraction pattern of the penumbral region of [Sunspot 1429] at $6302\text{\AA}$, assuming isotropic magnetic field as in @Lites1993. Although this veiling is a lower limit to the actual vertical component of the magnetic field, the value quoted above can be considered an upper limit to the actual Reynolds number in the penumbra. It has been pointed out in the literature that the velocities in sunspot penumbrae are lower than those in the quiet photosphere (e.g. @Giovanelli1980 [Lites1993]). In the simulations by
